Dear You-

The leaves are falling and pumpkin spice lattes are back. Are you ready for fall?

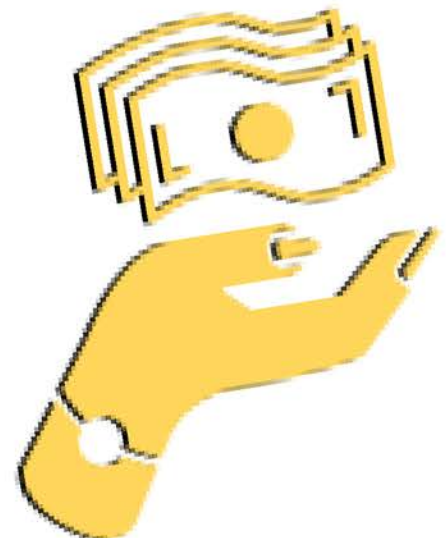

We are glad to have the rest of our student workers back after the summer--looking at you, Alekhya, Grace, and Nayla!

Speaking of Grace, her cyanotype workshop reprise as a sitting on the floor room only success! The zine for last spring's workshop is out, and she also made a References zine for the fall session.

Also, nbd but we were awarded $30K by the NEH to host a planning meeting for the Zine Union Catalog this summer. We'll have participants from the UK and all over the US discussing how to make organizational decisions in a matter compatible with queer, feminist, anarchopunk ideals.

In the Zine Library

On Thursday, October 5th, we are hosting a workshop for people who think they can't draw. The workshop will be led by artist and graphic designer Diane Zhou, who will guide participants through the basics of drawing. Her workshop will be focused on minicomics and autobiographical comics. We hope this workshop will help participants conquer their perfectionism and be brave about making art.

Zine library classes this month include

Professor Greene's Intro to Psychology

Two sections of Professor Ula's Queer Times

Two sections of Professor Cobos's Spanish II (led by Nayla Delgado BC '24)

Strike Zine!

In the past, with the help of the students and the faculty,

"Strike Zine!" was created by students at Barnard and Columbia. It chronicles the history of labor at Barnard and Columbia from PhD candidates to Barnard cleaning staff. A common theme of this zine is contrasting Barnard's mission to uplift and support women and its treatment of its staff members.
